Tarabai Shinde Women's studies Centre organized National Seminar on 'Hindu Succession Act & Women' at Jointly with Maharashtra State Commission for Women, Mumbai on 30th, November 2018.

India is dreaming to be a superpower and venturing into a digital world yet on the other side it hasn't been possible either to curb the customs like dowry and nor been able to create the society with an equal status for men and women. The brutal incidents of gang Rapes, domestic violence, trafficking, sexual harassment of women, child marriages etc. are still the bare truths of our society. Whenever such incidences occur many explanations and solutions are given but unfortunately none of them could make to stop them. The increasing incidents of violence against women do have a close relation to economic dependence and the subsequent subordinate position of women in the society. Indian constitution gives an equal share to men and women in their ancestral properties but legal unawareness and the patriarchal customs and conventions in the society do not allow women to exercise their property rights. This significant issue has also been largely neglected by women's movement and feminist academia and even not much efforts are seen to be being done at the governmental level to orient the people on the issue. Thus, Centre organized this workshop to critically discuss the feminist discourse over the property rights for women in India and make awareness about the property rights of women and to take a step ahead in empowerment and liberation of women.

The centre has completed this minor research project sanctioned by Maharashtra State Women's Commission, Mumbai to Ms. Nirmala Jadhav, Assistant Professor. The Sanctioned Amount of the Research Project is Rs. 1 Lakhs.

In the twenty first century the public appearance and functioning of women has increased notably. A large number of girls and women are found to be studying and working in the schools, colleges and many other government and semi government establishments. Thus, obviously with the increasing number of women in these establishments it is expected that the basic facilities and the specific facilities required for women should be provided by the concerned establishments. But the general observations and one study done at Tarabai shinde women's Studies Centre, Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar marathwada University, Aurangabad, it is found that the condition of basic facilities like toilets, water, lights, security, and also the women specific facilities like Creche, ladies room, ladies toilets, availability of sanitary Napkins Vending Machines, etc. is very poor and many places there no such facilities are provided only and the situation becomes more worse in the rural areas. There is also a very poor maintenance of these facilities in many establishments therefore though at some places such facilities are provided those are not in use or can't be used by women. This lack of basic facilities and worsening condition of these facilities really hampers the public mobility and efficient functioning of women in the enterprises and in a way it affects the participation of women and development of the society as well. Therefore an attempt will be done in the present research to study the condition of facilities available for women in the government and non government establishments in the region of Marathwada.

Major Objectives:

1. To know what facilities should be given to women in any establishment.
2. To know in reality what facilities are given to women in the establishments
3. To understand the present situation of the facilities being provided to women.
4. To critically explore the reasons behind not providing the facilities to women in the establishments.
5. To understand how does the lack of these facilities affects the health and effective mobility and functioning of women
6. To understand the expectations of women regarding what facilities should be provided by the establishments.

Chairman of the Program: Prof. Nirmala Jadhav

He said that the patriarchal society, such a man should remain in the role of a lord, the woman should remain the role of a slave. Therefore, there is violence in the country where there is a patriarchal society. The violence on women in Indian society was a religion based, it was a natural for society. This violence was a reflection of the denial of women's basic rights. Chhatrapati Shahu

Maharaj accepted the humanitarian law in 1919 by framing violence against women act by continuing the women's emancipation thoughts of Mahatma Phule and Tarabai Shinde. They also said that Dr. Babasaheb Ambedkar prepared a Hindu code Bill which taken place of advice in favor of Shahu Maharaj's continuation and prepared the manifesto of Indian women.

Mangal Khwansura talked about the difference between the laws of Shahu Maharaj and the present laws. She urged that the youth must be to take initiative for equality. Prof. Pramod Hirode said that Shahu Maharaj has given many laws to prove his foresight, which based on equality value.

Caste in India and Rethinking of Gender History

Chief Speaker: Prof.V. Geetha

Date: 04/10/2018

Chairman of the Program: Prof. Pushpa Gaikwad

Tarabai Shinde Women's Studies Centre organized a special guest lecture of Prof.V. Geetha on 'Caste in India and Rethinking of Gender History'.

She said that, only the political and social movements are taken into account of modern India's history. During this period, various parts of India have different movements against caste and sexual exploitation. There is a need to rediscover the sexes, which have to be compiled by history. The early feminist movement in India was urbanized. However, some women have created a problem by stereotyping the question of rural women different from women in the city. The question of rural women is not only related to employment but also to their land and their potential. Many women have written that their experiences are different compared to others. History is not complete in the history of modern India due to political struggle and social reform. There was talk of social work done by high class men in the social movement. This social reformer only appears in discussion and layout of women in upper-class. But during this period, there have been many movements in different parts of India against caste and gender injustice. She gave many examples of how the society of these movements came to life and how women's lives changed. However, V Geetha said that the history of the Dalits, Adivasis, and women of the labor force has always been neglected.

Program chairman Pushpa Gaikwad said that women are the main architect of Indian history but they are hidden in history. She further asked about the system's thinking, it would also be need considered.

Prof. Nirmala Jadhav, Director Tarabai Shinde Women's Studies Centre, has given introduction of the program. Center's student Samar Azazi was anchoring this program and Rama Borde deliver vote of thanks. Centre's teaching and non-teaching staff – Prof. Ashwini More, Manjushri Landage, Dr. Savita Bahirat, Santosh Lokhande, Vikas Tachale, Sanjay Poul, also worked hard for program success.

Property Rights and Women

Chief Speaker: Prof. Aparna Katapalle

Date: 09/10/2018

Chairman of the Program: Prof. Nirmala Jadhav

Tarabai Shinde Women's Studies Centre organized a special guest lecture of Prof. Aparna Kottapalle on 'Property Rights and Women'.

She said that most of the religions of the world have been created by men. This is why women's subordination can be seen everywhere. Many untrained customs and traditions have in society. For that reason women are assimilated in the form of 'things'. The result of all these circumstances is that the property is seen to be a great deal on inheritance rights. Not only in the law, but by changing the thinking, this situation can change and it is also equally important for women to make their own decision-making before becoming economically viable. While laying down the statute of 'inheritance rights', she explained the background of 'personal laws' and women's proprietary rights provisions for different religions in India and highlighting the provisions and concepts of women's inheritance rights.

Political Economy of Land Ownership

Chief Speaker: Prof. Nagesh Shelke

Date: 17/10/2018

Chairman of the Program: Prof. Nirmala Jadhav

Tarabai Shinde Women's Studies Centre organized a special guest lecture of Prof. Nagesh Shelke on 'Political Economy of Land Ownership'

He said that India is a cultivated country and 60 per cent of the population depends on farming. The resource of the farm is abundant, but it is also important to check who owns the land and its political economy remains. In India, in the picture that family arrangements in the society, system management and gender-based social structure has a major impact on the ownership of land, women are subjected to civil rights, in accordance with dual and systematic collaboration and reproduction of production, women are always neglected from the ownership of land. Before the British came to India, the land was seen as a means of livelihood, but when the British came to India, they saw agriculture as a source of income. In future, due to the political and social conditions of independence, India's culture was always associated with the land, hence the land was also seen as a mother of nationalist cultural framework. Even though the element of land named as a market item was seen in the 1990s, it is important to understand the cultural politics of the land as it has a major influence on the land and the future structure of the caste, family and gender.

Prof. Nirmala Jadhav, Director Tarabai Shinde Women's Studies Centre, has given introduction of the program. Center's student Nikita Shinde was anchoring this program and Meghana Marathe deliver vote of thanks. Centre's teaching and non-teaching staff – Prof. Ashwini More, Manjushri Landage, Dr. Savita Bahirat, Santosh Lokhande, Vikas Tachale, Sanjay Poul, also worked hard for program success.

11-10-2018

Chief Speaker: Vijay Bahadure

Tarabai Shinde Women's Studies Centre organized a special guest lecture of Mr. Vijay Bahaddure on 'News Writing and Photography'.

He said that, Good news writing begins with good, accurate reporting. Journalists perform a public service for citizens by presenting truthful facts in honest, straight-forward articles. Journalists commonly use six values to determine how newsworthy a story or elements of a story are. Knowing the news values can help a journalist make many decisions, including: What information to give first in a news article, and in the lede; Which articles to display on a newspaper's front page; What questions to ask in an interview. The six news values are: Timeliness, Proximity, Prominence, Uniqueness/oddity, Impact, Conflict. And along with news articles are written in a structure known as the "inverted pyramid." In the inverted pyramid format, the most newsworthy information goes at the beginning of the story and the least newsworthy information goes at the end.

She said that families do not allow women to inherit land. To them land is man's business where women are restricted from demanding to own a piece of father's land. Land inheritance has become man's right and women have decided to mute on this matter of fear of being cursed. The society assumes that the women automatically inherits her husband's land once is married. Few people who have started seeing the importance of allowing women to inherit their land. I think men need to be liberated from this notion of denying their sisters and daughters the right of inheriting land and other family assets.

Chief Speaker: Dr. Chetana Sonkamble

Date: 06/10/2018

Tarabai Shinde Women's Studies Centre organized a special guest lecture of Dr. Chetana Sonkamble on 'Research Methodology'

Dr. Sonkamble said that before embarking on the details of research methodology and techniques, it seems appropriate to present a brief overview of the research process. Research process consists of series of actions or steps necessary to effectively carry out research and the desired sequencing of these steps. The first step determines the nature of the last step to be undertaken. If subsequent procedures have not been taken into account in the early stages, serious difficulties may arise which may even prevent the completion of the study. One should remember that the various steps involved in a research process are not mutually exclusive; nor they are separate and distinct. However, the following order concerning various steps provides a useful procedural guideline regarding the research process: that is 1. formulating the research problem; 2. extensive literature survey; 3. developing the hypothesis; 4. preparing the research design; 5. determining sample design; 6. collecting the data; 7. execution of the project; 8. analysis of data; 9. hypothesis testing; 10. generalizations and interpretation, and 11. preparation of the report or presentation of the results, i.e., formal write-up of conclusions reached.
